Improving the Quality of Cotton

4551. SHRI SURESH PACHOURI:
SHRI AHMED MOHMEDBHAI PATEL:

Will the Minister of TEXTILES be pleased to state :

(a) whether there is an urgent need for improving the quality of cotton which has been rated as one of the most con taminated cotton in the world by Inter national agencies;

(b) whether according to the experts, contamination in the Indian cotton includes coloured thread, human hair and many extraneous material thrown in the cotton after picking or during transportation ;

(c) if so, what are the steps being taken to improve the quality of cotton which has been largely rejected by the foreign countries;

(d) whether Seminars on the cotton perspective on quality and development being held in India; and

(e) what are the other measures being taken to improve the quality of the cotton in India?

THE MINISTER OF STATE OF THE MINISTRY OF TEXTILES (SHRI G. VENKAT SWAMY) : (a) and (b) There is a need for improving the quality of cotton and reduce the levels of contamination present in cotton today. Deficiencies at various stages of post harvest management and obsolete ginning and pressing machinery leads to contamination which includes presence of non-cotton fibres such as jute/hessin. woven plastics, organic matters like leaves, feathers, leather as well as substances like grease/oil, tar, etc.

(c) to (e) It is not correct that Indian cotton has been largely rejected by foreign countries. We have been exporting cotton regularly. However, there is a need to improve the quality of cotton and towards this end Govt, has drawn up an Action Plan for improvement in ginning and pressing industry which includes inter alia programme of education, training of workers, preparation of maintenance manuals for machinery.
